Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 28 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Fine and sunny for many. Chilly for some coasts.

Today:
Staying dry with plenty of sunshine for most though northern and eastern parts cloudier to start. Windier than Saturday in the south and feeling chilly along some east and south coasts.

Tonight:
Plenty of clear spells with temperatures falling bringing some frost for many from northern England northwards. Further south becoming cloudier overnight and breezy.

Monday:
Cloudier than Sunday for many central and northeastern parts of England though still some sunny spells. Elsewhere good sunshine though still breezy in the south.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Mainly settled with light winds, although often rather cloudy with some overnight mist and fog. Showery rain, especially in the south, possible Wednesday. Rather cold in north, mild in south.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.